Market Review

The Government Investment Issues (“GII”) yield curve bull-steepened in May 2025. US trade policies under the new Trump administration continued to influence global rates as US Treasury yields sharply rose during the month amidst the de-escalation of trade tensions between the US and China. Domestically, the market was boosted by a dovish signal by BNM. Although BNM kept the overnight policy rate (“OPR”) on hold at the May Monetary Policy Committee (“MPC”) meeting, the statement reflected heightened uncertainty on economic growth. Additionally, BNM cut the statutory reserve ratio (“SRR”) by 100 bps to inject liquidity into the banking system and support financial stability.

Malaysia’s headline inflation remained unchanged at 1.4% YoY in April (March 2025: 1.4% YoY), while core inflation edged higher to 2.0% YoY (March 2025: 1.9% YoY). Higher core inflation was contributed by core components including mobile communication services, jewellery and watches, as well as air passenger transport. Industrial production index for March 2025 grew 3.2% YoY (February 2025: 1.5% YoY). Growth was supported by the manufacturing and mining sectors which grew 4.0% YoY and 1.9% YoY, respectively.

The FBMS (“Index”) fell 0.16% Month-on-Month (“MoM”) to close at 11,256 pts in May 2025. The Index underperformed the MSCI Asia ex Japan Index, which gained 3.5% MoM in Malaysian Ringgit (“MYR”) terms over the same period. Locally, market sentiment was initially buoyed by the news that China and the US had agreed to roll back tariffs. However, optimism was short lived as weaker than expected corporate earnings and limited forward earnings visibility amid tariff uncertainties led to a more cautious tone in the market.

Market Outlook

Despite the recent de-escalation of trade tensions between China and the US where additional tariffs were put on hold for 3 months, there is still much uncertainty on the potential economic impact of the trade war as negotiations continue between the US and its trade partners. Domestically, Malaysia’s growth will likely be weighed by weakening external demand. Inflation impact would likely be muted, barring any upside risks to inflation from subsidy reform measures. We continue to expect volatility in the immediate term as the market reacts to further developments on US trade tariffs and key economic data releases.
