MANAGER'S COMMENTS

The FTSE Bursa Malaysia index ("KLCI") closed the month of February down 12.3 points to 1,856.20 from 1,868.58 (-0.66%). Market sentiment was shaken following a turbulent global equity selloff in the first week of February. This came as a result from the bond market selloff and the rise in the US 10 year government bond yields since the beginning of the year. Investors were worried about slowing global growth momentum, as well as market inflation and policy concerns were the main key reasons for the selloff in equities. Despite the global market rout, Malaysia's economic fundamentals have remained intact as we continue to witness sustained global synchronised growth benefiting the local economy. Domestically, Malaysia economy expanded 5.9% in 4Q17 on the back of higher contribution from net exports and government consumption. However, the ringgit depreciated to 3.9150 from 3.8975 (-0.45%) in February following the decline in crude oil prices (WTI) to $61.64/barrel from $64.56/barrel (-4.52%).

Malaysia's macro outlook has brightened on the back of stronger growth, waning inflation and an improving balance of payments. External risks namely fed rate hike policy, global growth concerns, inflationary pressure requires close monitoring as these events can affect Malaysia's outlook. Closer to home, the general elections, Bank Negara Malaysia's (BNM) rate hike policy and corporate earnings remain the key issues for the rest of 2018. As such, we believe in adopting a discipline approach in managing the portfolio with both active bets in key thematic ideas and holding selected dividend yielding stocks to anchor for passive income.
